About WILL EISNER:

Will Eisner (1917-2005) grew up during the Great Depression in the tenements of the Bronx. He was a pioneer in the creation of comics during the "Golden Age" of the 1930s and '40s, achieving fame with his noir crime-fighting hero, The Spirit. Many comics greats worked with Eisner including Jules Feiffer, Wally Wood, Jack Kirby, Al Jaffee, Mike Ploog, and others. After The Spirit ceased publication in 1952, Eisner, with his strong business acumen, turned to creating educational and instructional "sequential art" - a term he coined - for business, educational and industrial use. In 1978, Will Eisner once again reinvented himself—and the medium—with his seminal graphic novel, "A Contract with God." Will Eisner's more than 20 graphic novels and three textbooks are still in print in 15 languages all over the world. The prestigious Will Eisner Comic Industry Awards, the "Oscars of the Comics Industry," are presented annually at the San Diego Comic-Con.
